“Reflections of the Everyday Game” captures the intricate dance of daily routines viewed through the lens of a strategic game. The artwork features a mirror symbolizing introspection and the journey of looking within oneself. This mirror invites viewers to ponder their own identities and the choices they make each day. Surrounding the mirror is a checkered background, inspired by a chessboard, representing the unpredictability and strategic nature of life.

Just as in chess, where each move can lead to varied outcomes, our daily lives are filled with decisions that shape our path, often feeling like a game where we never quite know what the next move will bring. This piece highlights the duality and the balance between routine and spontaneity, and order and chaos. The piece encourages viewers to consider how their personal reflection influences their perception of life's game, urging them to find meaning and strategy in the seemingly ordinary moments.
